DESCRIPTION

This course continues on from GREK 201 as an introduction to the ancient Greek language, emphasising the skills and knowledge necessary for reading ancient texts, including vocabulary, word-forms, and syntax. The language learned in Greek 201, 203, and 301 is Attic Greek, the language of the Athenian writers Sophocles, Thucydides and Plato (5th and 4th centuries BCE). This is the basis of the 'common language' (Koiné) of the Hellenistic and Roman periods (3rd century BCE to 5th century CE). These course also prepare students to read texts in related dialects (including Homer) and the New Testament and other early Christian writings.
