COURSE DESCRIPTION
GRST 209 is an introduction to Greek and Roman myth, as presented in classical literature and art, and their cultural context.

Why are the myths of ancient Greece and Rome so enduring? What can we learn from them? How do we incorporate classical myth into our modern world and what can these stories tell us today? These questions, and more, will be explored in this course.

“The ancient Greeks have a knack of wrapping up truths in myths.” – George Lloyd, composer

LEARNING OUTCOMES
By the end of the course, students should be able to:
• define what a myth is, explain the three types of myths, and provide examples;
• recall the characters, plots, and places of the major Classical myths covered in the course;
• identify the standard iconography of the major Classical gods, goddesses, heroes, etc.;
• analyze the ancient cultural or historical context of myths and interpret myths for common themes and motifs;
• apply various theories and approaches to the study of myth;
• identify and analyze uses of Classical myth in the modern world.

ONLINE ELEMENTS

D2L ASSIGNMENT
The assignment is on classical mythology in the modern world. The genre will be limited but otherwise students will have lots of choice for topics. It should be 500 words in length and uploaded the D2L Dropbox by the due date in MS Word format. More details will be provided on D2L.

MIDTERMS

- iconography (which may mean questions involving images)
- myth analysis, interpretation and theories

Each midterm will consist of 60 multiple-choice and one short-answer question (with choice.) Each midterm covers material prior to that test and is NOT CUMULATIVE. (e.g., Midterm #2 covers material from after midterm #1 up to the class before midterm #2.)

Midterms are not returned to students, but you can always make an appointment with me or a TA to discuss your results.

FINAL EXAM
The final exam is scheduled by the Registrar and is 2 hours in length. It will contain 90 multiple-choice and two short-answer questions (with choice.)

The final exam IS CUMULATIVE and covers both lectures and textbook material. You will see questions similar to the midterm exams.

FAQS – FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

What is the policy regarding missed exams/assignments?
Circumstances leading to missed evaluation and requests for an extension will be assessed on a case-by-case basis and documentary proof may be requested. (Please see page 6 of this course outline for information on statutory declarations.) Accommodations for foreseeable events (e.g., trips, varsity athletics) should be requested well in advance. In the case of an unexpected event (e.g., illness, accident), you should contact me as soon as possible!

Please note: no “bonus” assignments or “make-ups” are available.

What is the policy regarding late assignments?
A penalty of 5% per day is applied to all work submitted after the due date, unless a request for extension is granted.

Where is the course schedule?
A complete schedule of weekly topics and readings will be made available on D2L before the first day of class.

What should I do if I missed the first class?
If you’ve missed the first class and you’re reading this, then you’re off to the right start! Read the whole course outline, download the course schedule on D2L, and start your textbook readings as soon as possible. Most logistical questions can be answered by the outline, but if you have any further questions, email me.

What are the expectations/policies for student conduct in this class?
Everyone is entitled to a positive, comfortable, and productive learning environment and both students and the instructor have a responsibility to create it. Therefore, you and I are expected to:

• be courteous and respectful towards all members of the class in all interactions (in person & online);
• reply to emails promptly (especially when the subject matter is time sensitive) and keep appointments (both during office hours and those scheduled outside office hours);
• be respectful of everyone’s time: I will start and end class on time; you will come to class on time; however, if you’re late, you should enter the classroom quietly and with as little disturbance to your classmates as possible; you should wait until the class time is up to begin packing up your belongings.
• be considerate when it comes to electronic device use: electronic devices are permitted in the classroom; however, everyone is expected to make their device use as unobtrusive as possible; this means we will put our phones on vibrate/silent, and use electronic devices for course purposes only; if you need to take a call during class, leave the room as quietly and inconspicuously as possible; the recording of lectures is not allowed unless express permission is given by the instructor;
• use the class productively and come prepared: this means that I will come prepared and will use class activities and give assessments which relate directly to the course objectives, and you will complete the assigned readings before class and be attentive and engaged in class – not distracted and distracting to others (e.g., talking during lecture.)
HOW TO BE SUCCESSFUL IN THIS COURSE

1. Attend lectures
Regular attendance will go a long way in understanding course material and getting a sense for how to study for exams. When you’re present at lectures, you also start to pick up on what course material is likely to be tested and can get your questions or concerns addressed immediately.

2. Take notes
Good notes! When you take notes, you’re likely to remember materials better. And consider taking them by hand if you can – studies have shown that students retain information longer and understand it better if they handwrite their notes (e.g., www.scientificamerican.com/article/a-learning-secret-don-t-take-notes-with-a-laptop/) Think of it this way: when you type your notes, you’re passively recording information; but when you handwrite your notes, you’re interactively engaging with the material because you need to digest, condense, and summarize the information.

3. Do the readings
The readings in this course aren’t optional; they’re required and testable. But in addition, if you come to class with the readings complete you will get WAY more out of the class: you’ll understand more, you’ll be able to ask more questions, and you’ll feel better prepared for exams. Remember to highlight, underline, or take notes while you read.

4. Question, question, question!
This applies to all aspects of the course! You can ask me questions before/in/after class, you can jot down questions about the content to email me about later, or you can come to office hours or make an appointment. Don’t be a passive learner!

5. Get a jump start
Review your notes sooner rather than later and employ study tools as you go. Whatever you use to study and review (paper cue cards, online flash cards, re-writing your notes, study groups, PeerWise, etc.) start doing it as soon as you can! If you wait too long, you will regret it.

6. Take advantage of PeerWise
There are no pre-made practice tests for this course, so we will be using PeerWise.

What is PeerWise?
PeerWise is an online repository of multiple-choice questions that are created, answered, rated, and discussed by students. We begin with an empty repository and as the course progresses it grows gradually as you (the students) create and contribute relevant questions.

Why should I use it?
When many students use PeerWise to create lots of questions, a large and robust repository is created to help you self-test. Also, by creating questions, you have to really understand the material and what makes a good question. More info will be provided in class and on D2L regarding this.

How do I access PeerWise?
I will be providing the class with login instructions on D2L, so keep an eye on your News Feed!
