Required Text(s):
Martin, Craig, Russell T. McCutcheon, and Leslie Dorrough Smith, eds. 2012. Religious Experience: A Reader. Sheffield, UK and Bristol, CT: Equinox Publishing. (This text is available as an e-book through the university’s library website.)

Rankin, Marianne. 2008. An Introduction to Religious and Spiritual Experience. London and New York: Continuum Publishing. (This text is available as an e-book through the university’s library website.)

Course Description:

Many religions, charitable institutions, and personal stories of radical change attribute their source to or include in their origin stories the account of a transformative religious experience. Experience, however, is a slippery category. What is a religious experience and how can such experiences be studied? This course will provide students with a historical overview of the role played by religious experience in the major religious traditions and in the lives of a selection of famous mystics and historical figures, a survey of the types of and triggers for religious experiences, and an introduction to the theoretical approaches and philosophical questions that guide the academic study of religious experience. Reflective writing assignments, exams, and a final research project will enable students to interrogate the category of “experience” both personally and critically.
Online Elements for This Course:
This course will use an asynchronous format, which means it does not require you to be online at a specific time (although some elements may need to be downloaded or completed within a given timeframe). In this class, asynchronous elements will include, for example, pre-recorded lectures that you download and watch, readings you will do on your own from the required texts (which are available through the university’s library website as e-books), primary sources posted as PDF files, assignments submitted through D2L, and an exam conducted online via D2L. My office hours will be held via Zoom.

Core Competencies:
Upon successful completion of this course, students should be able to:

Knowledge:

- Explain the role played by religious experience in the Christian tradition
- Identify the religious and non-religious triggers of religious experience
- Compare, apply, and evaluate the most important theoretical approaches and philosophical questions that guide the academic study of religious experience

Skills:

- Make detailed observations of the physical sensations, emotions, thoughts, ideas, and questions that arise from repeatedly engaging in a practice or action associated with spiritual experience
- Describe, categorize, and analyze the sensory, intellectual, and cultural inputs that make “experience” possible
- Gather, evaluate, and use secondary sources to investigate a research question
- Apply a theoretical framework to analyze the historical, contextual, and cultural construction of “experience” as a category in the accounts of famous religious experiences

Course Requirements:
This course will involve the following assessments/assignments:

1. Participation = 10%

   Your engagement with the course material is essential to the learning you will do in this course. Five short assignments throughout the semester (worth 2% each) will help guide and structure your responses to the course materials. I will provide a handout to explain each participation assignment.

2. Theory Exam = 20%

   We will start the semester with a four-week Theory Unit, during which we will read essays by scholars whose work will provide us with a conceptual framework for the study of religious experience. An exam will conclude the Theory Unit to assess your understanding of the frameworks covered. The exam will be administered via D2L and will open at 2:00 PM on Monday, October 5th and remain available for 24 hours. Once you begin the exam, you will have 115 minutes to complete it. I will provide more detailed information about the types of questions on the exam closer to the exam date so that you can prepare.
3. Experiential Learning Project = 35%
   • Project proposal (5%)
   • Critical reflection entries (2 x 5% = 10%)
   • Visual representation of experience with short analysis (20%)

After establishing the theoretical framework for our work, we will undertake an Experiential Learning Unit, designed to guide you through a personalized interrogation of the category of “experience” by applying the theories from the beginning of the semester to first-hand observations. You will receive detailed handouts in class explaining each part of the project, which has three components. First, you will select an activity that in Rankin’s terms can sometimes serve as a trigger of spiritual experience. The activity you choose can be either religious or non-religious in nature, for example, saying the Catholic Rosary, performing yogic sun salutations, spending time in nature, or listening with intention to your favorite music. Once your proposal is approved, you will engage in this activity for at least ten minutes twice per week for two weeks on your own time. Each week in which you engage in your practice, you will produce a Critical Reflection Entry in which you record your observations about what you sense, think, feel, and use concepts from our Theory Unit to analyze your experience. To conclude the Experiential Learning Project, you will build and post a visual representation of your experience, accompanied by a short analysis. Your visual representation and analysis will be shared with the class in an online exposition. Each student will view and respond to at least three projects from other class members to foster the creation of a learning community.

4. Team Analysis of Historical Case Study (5%)

Our first-hand experience recording, representing, and analyzing experiences will prepare us for the Historical Analysis Unit, during which we will use the knowledge and skills built thus far to practice analyzing famous religious experiences from the past. Weeks 11 and 12 of the semester will each focus on an historical case study. For these weeks, students will work in teams to produce an analysis of one of these case studies (a handout will be provided). The goal of this assignment is to practice the skills you will use in developing your historical analysis paper at the end of the semester. In the week in which your team is not responsible for producing a team analysis, you will have a short participation assignment to help you engage with the week’s material.

5. Historical Analysis Paper = 30%

To conclude the semester, each student will write a final research paper (1500-1800 words) on a religious experience from the past. The paper must use at least one primary source (a document that gets us as close to the religious experience you are studying as possible – for example, a journal entry, eye-witness account, image, etc.), five secondary sources, and one theoretical reading from the semester. The goal of this assignment is to guide you through the academic exploration and analysis of the representations that mediate our knowledge of religious experience. A handout will detail the required elements of the research paper, instruction will be provided via videos, and I will hold extra office hours to support your progress.
Summary of dates and weights:
I will post materials to D2L each Tuesday by 2:00 PM. In general (with one or two exceptions), your assignments will be due the following Monday by 2:00 PM.

ADDITIONAL COURSE INFORMATION

Policy with regard to missed assignments/assessments:
Unless you have made a prior arrangement with me for an extension, assignments will be marked down by 1% for each hour they are late. This policy is meant to encourage the timely submission of work.

At the same time, I know that we all juggle multiple, competing deadlines in our lives (me too!), and I am willing to work with you. I want you to succeed in this course. For this reason, each student has three Extension Days that they can apply to any assignment. An Extension Day pushes the deadline back by 24 hours (for example, if the assignment was due by 2:00 PM on Monday, when you apply an Extension Day it would be due by 2:00 PM on Tuesday). You can apply your Extension Days to separate assignments, or use all of them on one assignment, as you see fit. To use an Extension Day, you must email me before the original deadline. Please use the phrase “Extension Day” in the subject line of your email.

If health or family crises emerge that impact your ability to meet course deadlines and the above options are not sufficient, please email me so that we can work together to find a solution.

Expectations for student conduct in this course:
Your active participation is important for your own learning as well as the learning of your peers. In this class, your participation will largely be conducted in written form (although I strongly encourage you to come to office hours and to coordinate synchronous Zoom sessions with your team members, as you see fit.) In written communication, we do not have the benefit of vocal intonations and facial expressions to help us interpret tone and meaning, which makes it all the more important to strive for courteousness and kindness in online comments and posts. Common forms of written courteousness include:

- Using greetings (Dear Jensen / Hi Carlos / Hello Sarah)
- Using complete sentences
- Using transitions (“As Julia said, I think…, “’I want to build on Mohad’s idea”’)
- Noting points of agreement as well as of disagreement
- Using vocabulary that signals observation, description, analysis, scholarly argument, and hypothesis formation rather than judgement

Electronic Device Policy:
The materials I post for this class are to be used for your own personal study and are protected by copyright (see below, ‘Copyright Regulations’), by the University of Calgary’s regulations for recording of lectures (see Calendar, section E.6: https://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/e-6.html), and by federal and provincial privacy legislation. This means that:

- you must not distribute, copy, post elsewhere, or share any course materials with people outside our class.
- you must not make, distribute, copy, post elsewhere, or share recordings of synchronous sessions or presentations by your fellow students.
- you must not share with others or on any social media platforms the Zoom link or password for synchronous sessions. Zoom links and passwords are only intended for students registered in the course.

By taking this class you agree to these conditions. If you have any questions about this, please contact the instructor.
Learning Technologies and Requirements:
This course will use a D2L site to post required readings, lecture videos, handouts, and other relevant class resources and materials. We will use Zoom for office hours and for any optional synchronous sessions.

In order to successfully engage in this course, you will need the following:
- Access to a computer, laptop, or tablet with a supported operating system, as well as the latest security and malware updates
- A current and updated web browser
- Microphone and speaker (built-in or external), or headset with microphone
- Broadband internet access
- Your UCID
- A webcam (built-in or external) is strongly recommended

For the office hours and for the optional synchronous sessions, I encourage you to use your microphone and camera, because this helps us all get to know each other and feel comfortable working together. We are a learning community and it is easier to build a sense of collaborative camaraderie when we can see each other. If you have concerns about this, or if you will not have access to a microphone and camera during synchronous sessions, please contact me to let me know.

Guidelines for Zoom Sessions:
Zoom is a video conferencing program that will allow us to meet at specific times for a “live” video conference, so that we can have the opportunity to meet each other virtually and discuss relevant course topics as a learning community.

To help ensure Zoom sessions are private, do not share the Zoom link or password with others, or on any social media platforms. Zoom links and passwords are only intended for students registered in the course. Zoom recordings and materials presented in Zoom, including any teaching materials, must not be shared, distributed or published without the instructor’s permission.

The use of video conferencing programs relies on participants to act ethically, honestly and with integrity; and in accordance with the principles of fairness, good faith, and respect (as per the Code of Conduct). When entering Zoom or other video conferencing sessions (such as MS Teams), you play a role in helping create an effective, safe and respectful learning environment. Please be mindful of how your behaviour in these sessions may affect others. Participants are required to use names officially associated with their UCID (legal or preferred names listed in the Student Centre) when engaging in these activities. Instructors/moderators can remove those whose names do not appear on class rosters. Non-compliance may be investigated under relevant University of Calgary conduct policies (e.g Student Non-Academic Misconduct Policy). If participants have difficulties complying with this requirement, they should email the instructor of the class explaining why, so the instructor may consider whether to grant an exception, and on what terms. For more information on how to get the most out of your zoom sessions visit: https://elearn.ucalgary.ca/guidelines-for-zoom/.

If you are unable to attend a Zoom session, please contact your instructor to arrange an alternative activity for the missed session (e.g., to review a recorded session). Please be prepared, as best as you are able, to join class in a quiet space that will allow you to be fully present and engaged in Zoom sessions. Students will be advised by their instructor when they are expected to turn on their webcam (for group work, presentations, etc.).

The instructor may record online Zoom class sessions for the purposes of supporting student learning in this class – such as making the recording available for review of the session or for students who miss a session. Students will be advised before the instructor initiates a recording of a Zoom session. These recordings will be used to support student learning only and will not be shared or used for any other purpose.

Expectations for Writing:
All written assignments (including, to a lesser extent, written exam responses) will be assessed at least partly on writing skills. Writing skills include not only surface correctness (grammar, punctuation, sentence structure, etc.) but also general clarity and organization. Sources used in research papers must be properly documented. If you need help with your writing, you may use the writing support services in the Learning Commons. For further information, please refer to the official online University of Calgary Calendar, Academic Regulations, E. Course Information, E.2: Writing Across the Curriculum: http://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/e-2.html. A detailed handout and rubric will be provided for each writing assignment.

Course Evaluations and Feedback:
Student feedback will be sought at the end of the course through the standard University Student Ratings of Instruction (USRI) and Faculty course evaluation forms. A midterm evaluation may also be included to provide students an opportunity to provide feedback, for the instructor to adjust their approaches to teaching and learning, and to continuously improve the course. Students are welcome to discuss the process and content of the course at any time with the instructor.
