COURSE DESCRIPTION:

As an introduction to Buddhism, this course focuses on the historical development of Early Buddhist formations (500 BCE to 100 CE), investigating their beginnings and transformation in India and other SE Asian cultures. The course begins by examining the historical and cultural context in which Early Buddhism began, first as represented in the life and teachings of Siddhārtha Gautama, and then followed by the socio-cultural institutions and religious practices that developed after his life. The course then examines the cosmological structures of Buddhist universes, the early socio-economic structure of Buddhist schools and institutions, including the relationships between monastic and lay communities, the oral/written transmission of texts, as well as the archaeology of Buddhist devotion that develops during the Mauryan period with the worship of stūpas, relics, and images. The course concludes with describing Buddhist developments in the northwestern borderlands (Gandhāra) and a discussion on the place of women in early Buddhism.

COURSE DELIVERY:

The course online content will be delivered in an asynchronous context (i.e., students complete on their own time such as discussion boards, watching videos, etc.). This course will take place online via Desire2Learn (D2L). To best succeed in the course, students are encouraged to participate in the asynchronous learning tasks using the D2L learning environment.

Course Organization and Requirements: The course is organized on a lecture/discussion basis following the topics and readings listed in the tentative schedule (see below). Students are expected to keep up with the reading schedule. Each student is required to write three exams and a term paper. The exams will be a combination of multiple choice, identification of terms and concepts, and/or short answer questions. Students should consult the posted lecture notes and required textbooks to become familiar with concepts utilized in the course. The parameters for the term paper will be posted and distributed on the course D2L website.

Core Competencies: Students will gain university level skills in the study and understanding of Asian religion and culture with specific attention to South/Southeast Asian Buddhist culture and history. Students will become familiar with the history and culture of Indian Buddhism including how Buddhist religious traditions grew out of, and reflect, unique historical, geographical, and cultural conditions.

There is a D2L site for this course which contains required readings and other relevant class resources and materials (see d2L.ucalgary.ca).

 For online, remote or blended courses:

In order to successfully engage in their learning experiences at the University of Calgary, students taking online, remote and blended courses are required to have reliable access to the following technology:

- A computer with a supported operating system, as well as the latest security, and malware updates;
- A current and updated web browser;
- Webcam (built-in or external);
- Microphone and speaker (built-in or external), or headset with microphone;
- Current antivirus and/or firewall software enabled;
- Broadband internet connection.

Tentative Lecture Material and Reading Schedule:

The following lecture schedule is subject to change. It may be modified if it appears to the instructor that the material is not being adequately covered in the allotted time. The amount of time devoted to particular topics is contingent on the instructor’s sense of what deserves greater emphasis as the course progresses. Remember, to be aware of changes occurring in the schedule and to receive any crucial information regarding the course, attention to course announcements on D2L is necessary. Keep in mind that all lectures constitute material that may appear on examinations. Remember, too, that it is not possible for the instructor to explain all the material contained in the readings—it is up to students to be familiar with the readings regardless of the extent to which the assigned texts are discussed in course lectures.
