Block Week Course Description:

Please note that this course will run from Mon Jan 6-10th Jan 2020

This course will run for 5 days during block week from 9 am to approximately 5 pm daily. Success in this block week course requires full attendance, thorough preparation and engagement with the material and, of course, prompt submission of all assessed requirements. Failure to complete and submit all assessed course requirements will result in a grade of F for the course. NO extensions will be permitted and NO late papers will be accepted without acceptable documentation.

Students should be aware of the following important regulations concerning Block Week courses: The last day to drop a Block Week course (without the course appearing on the student's transcript) is the end of the first day of lectures. The last day to withdraw from a Block Week course is the final day of lectures during the Block Week. Final grades for Block Week courses will not be required until the end of the term in which the course is offered.

Description of content: What does our preoccupation with monsters, the forces of chaos, demons and anti-gods tell us about religious ways of being? That is, how does our interest in the negative aspects of existence define their opposites: our highest goals and aspirations? While it is notoriously difficult to understand the sublime, perfect, Transcendent, we seem to have little problem imagining its opposite – indeed our notions of transcendence and divinity may best be understood as the necessary, polar opposites of the monstrous and demonic immanent. This course will consider the monstrous, demonic and chaotic in order to understand how human beings have dealt with this ‘dark side’ as well as what they can tell us about religion’s higher goals.

Core Competencies:

Committed students in this class will have the opportunity to reflect on some key issues in the study of religion through depictions of the monstrous in popular culture. In so doing they will gain critical reading, interpretive and analytic skills. Additionally, students will begin to acquire abilities in forming clear, concise and cogent arguments, develop their writing and communication skills and broaden their perspectives on the place of religion in our cultures. Skills acquired in this course will have relevance in upper level courses in the humanities as well as in wider social settings. Knowledge acquired in this course will help students reflect more clearly and critically on the relationship between religion and culture and on their own religious or irreligious narratives.

Online elements for this course (if any): Some resources will be posted on D2L. However, please note that lecture notes/Powerpoint will not be posted on D2L. It is your responsibility to attend lectures and make notes.

Assessment: Please note policy regarding exams below

	Date	Description	Weight
Exam 1	Jan 7	exam covering the pre-reading material from the Beale textbook (Chapters Intro – 3 inclusive)	30%
presentations	Jan 8-10	Group Presentations on topics covered in class informed by readings and class discussion	30%
Exam 3	Jan 10	Take home exam, due Jan 13 th 2020	40%

There will be no Registrar scheduled final exam in this course. Please note, grades for block week classes may not be posted until the end of the semester, in line with grades for regular semester courses.

NB:  Failure to submit an assessment/write an exam will result in an F for that assessment. Given the compressed nature of the course NO exceptions or rescheduling will be allowed without extremely extenuating circumstances and must be accompanied by relevant medical certificates, etc. This is to help ensure that the course is completed in the required time. Students who know or suspect that they will be unable to attend the class regularly or have to miss one of the assessment dates should reconsider their participation in this course.

Grading:

A numerical mark will be given for each course requirement. A letter grade will be assigned on the following number and letter grade scheme:

B+ 80-84%	B 75-79%	B- 70-74%

References and Bibliography:

The Department of Classics and Religion uses the most recent edition of the Chicago Manual of Style and requires references and bibliographies to adhere to the Chicago citation system. You can find a quick guide here: http://www.chicagomanualofstyle.org/tools_citationguide.html. Alternatively please consult with the library staff for help and advice using the Chicago citation style.

Expectations for student conduct in this course:

This course will require students to be present for all classes and participate fully. While no participation grade is formally assessed, your performance and input into class discussions, responses, presentations and exercises will inform the grade for your assessments. You will be expected to have read the material for the course and be ready to ask informed and relevant questions. I do not make my notes available on-line or in other forms, so if you cannot avoid missing a class, please ask a fellow student for notes which you have missed. Lectures will assume knowledge of the assigned texts and will be analytic in nature. If you miss presentation dates, you will be assigned an F for that part of the course and a 5% reduction to your group's marks may be levied.

Electronic Device Policy:

Recent studies have clearly shown that use of laptops and other electronic tools for notes and in-class work results in poorer learning outcomes and consequently worse grades (Mueller and Oppenheimer, Psychological Science 2014, Vol. 25(6) 1159–1168). While respectful use of laptops or tablets for academic purposes is allowed in this course, you are strongly encouraged not to use them at all in class. If students use them for non-academic purposes in class, they will be asked to leave that class, possibly forfeiting some grades. Texting in class is to be limited to emergencies only. If students persist in texting, surfing the web or other activities not directly relevant to the course, they will be asked to leave that class and/or to leave their devices at the front of class until its conclusion. You may not use laptops or phones during films as the glow from the screen is highly distracting. Please respect your fellow students and me by avoiding distracting use of these devices.

Your essays/presentations must be your own work and inadequate referencing may be seen as plagiarism. All uses of ideas and words not your own must be referenced. Please see the relevant sections on Academic Misconduct in the current University Calendar.
