Course Description

COMS 580 is a full course. During the semester, teams will produce a media-based project while at the same time teams or individuals will complete a research essay. The first week of the class will be devoted to group formation, discussion of group process, elaboration of media and critical research projects, discussion of relevant topics, research methodologies, and issues surrounding format and writing. Both the project and the paper will be presented to the class at the end of the semester. The class will be involved in the grading of the media projects. Students will be asked to complete a grading sheet with comments on each project. Class meetings will include student led discussions of communication, culture and media events and theory.

Additional Information

Due to the nature of team projects students should anticipate costs of approximately $50-$100 for recording media, equipment rentals and services.

Objectives of the Course

The course will help the student to: 1. Integrate theoretical research and practical experience in media production. 2. Increase understanding of theoretical constructs, methodological approaches and research skills while reflecting upon their value in application to specific productions. 3. Exchange ideas and experiences that will broaden understanding of the field of media production.

Internet and electronic communication device information

All electronic devices (laptops, cell phones, etc.) should be turned off during class unless alternative arrangements have been made with the instructor.

Textbooks and Readings:

No textbook required. Readings may be assigned according to the project.

Recommended reading:
Action Research, 3rd ed., Ernest Stringer, 2007.

Research design: qualitative, quantitative, and mixed methods approaches, 3rd ed., John Creswell, 2009

Theories of communication, culture and media are foundational for this course. Students should already be aware of a wide range of theories from previous studies. At a minimum, you should have a good working knowledge of:

Interpersonal and Behavioral theories such as, Classical Rhetoric, Social Identity, Expectancy Value, Symbolic Interactionism, Uncertainty Reduction, Cognitive Dissonance, Theories of Attachment and Transportation, Cognitive Psychology, Social Psychology in Virtual Communities, and Captology.

Mass Media / Media in Culture theories that include, Agenda Setting, Framing, Cultivation Theory, Dependency Theory, Gatekeeping, Hypodermic Needle, Spiral of Silence, Uses and Gratification, Media Ethics, Subliminal Communication, Theories of Propaganda, and Theories of Persuasion.

Language / Linguistic theories including, Language Expectancy Theory, Semiotics and Semantics.

The above list is not exhaustive, and the placement of specific theories in the above categories is typical, not absolute. Students are encouraged to use any other theories relevant to their work.

All assignments must be completed or a grade of F may be assigned at the discretion of the instructor.

Students will write an advanced research paper, showing their ability to define, integrate and expand on culture and/or communications theories. Although there is a significant amount of latitude in the choice of topics, students are expected to engage in an on-going dialogue with the instructor concerning their research and progress. The paper may be written in an "alternate" style, but only after proper justification, appropriate learning outcomes have been identified, and the approval from the instructor. The paper carries high expectations, and should show a considerable level of research.

Further, students will produce a media-based group research project that will demonstrate both scholarly and practical skills. The group project allows students to explore theories and issues and put them into a practical setting. Ultimately, the success of the projects depends on the dialogue created between the group participants and the larger class.

Finally, each student will prepare an individual in-class theory presentation that will allow them to share with the class a communications, culture, or media theory of their choosing. They will define and contextualize the theory, sharing relevant points with the class, and ultimately lead the class in a discussion about the theory. Applicable and current examples should be included. Students are also encouraged to explain the theory with support of media and/or related tools.

It is the student's responsibility to keep a copy of each submitted assignment. Note: Please hand in your essays directly to your instructor if possible. If it is not possible to do so, a daytime drop box is available in SS320; a date stamp is provided for your use. A night drop box is also available for after-hours submission. Assignments will be removed the following morning, stamped with the previous day's date, and placed in the instructor's mailbox.

Electronically submitted assignments are not accepted.

Registrar-scheduled Final Examination: No

Policy for Late Assignments

Assignments submitted after the deadline may be penalized with the loss of a grade (e.g.: A- to B+) for each day late.

Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act

This course is conducted in accordance with the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act (FOIP). As one consequence, students should identify themselves on all written work by placing their name on the front page and their ID number. Also you will be required to provide a piece of picture identification in order to pick up an assignment or look at a final exam from SS320 after classes have ended.

Writing Skills Statement

Department policy directs that all written assignments (including, although to a lesser extent, written exam responses) will be assessed at least partly on writing skills. For details see http://www.comcul.ucalgary.ca/needtoknow. Writing skills include not only surface correctness (grammar, punctuation, sentence structure, etc.) but also general clarity and organization. Research papers must be properly documented.

If you need help with your writing, you may use the Writing Centre. Visit the website for more details: http://www.ucalgary.ca/ssc/writing-support

Grading System

In this class, you will receive grades in the 4-point scale (2.7, 3.0, 3.3) rather than percentages.   Sometimes you may receive grade points between letter grades. 3.5 is the mathematical mid-point between a B+ (3.3) and an A- (3.7) and 3.15 is the mid-point between a B (3.0) and a B+ (3.3), etc.

The following grading system is used in the Department of Communication and Culture:

Plagiarism

Using any source whatsoever without clearly documenting it is a serious academic offense. Consequences include failure on the assignment, failure in the course and possibly suspension or expulsion from the university.

You must document not only direct quotations but also paraphrases and ideas where they appear in your text. A reference list at the end is insufficient by itself. Readers must be able to tell exactly where your words and ideas end and other people's words and ideas begin. This includes assignments submitted in non-traditional formats such as Web pages or visual media, and material taken from such sources.

Please consult your instructor or the Writing Centre (3rd Floor Taylor Family Digital Library, http://www.ucalgary.ca/ssc/writing-support) if you have any questions regarding how to document sources.

Students with Disabilities

If you are a student with a disability who may require academic accommodation, it is your responsibility to register with the Disability Resource Centre (220-8237) and discuss your needs with your instructor no later than fourteen (14) days after the start of the course.
