Additional Information

COMS 601 and CUSP 601 are in the process of being combined into a single course to be called CMCL 601. This change has not made it into the calendar yet, so students will officially be registered in one of the two separate courses. However, the section will be taught as if it is one course.

Course Description

A foundation seminar including the presentation and discussion of a range of topics in the study of communication and culture. Students will receive a broad introduction to a selection of foundational theories in communication and culture through discussion of a variety of research approaches and traditions, encompassing interaction, representation, media, and interpretation in social behaviour.

Course Objectives

- 1) familiarize students with the University's resources for research in communication and culture
- 2) introduce research traditions represented in our program
- 3) initiate students in the process of developing a feasible research agenda for communication and culture research

Internet and electronic communication device information

Please respect other students in your use of electronic communication devices and computers.

Textbooks/Readings

There is no required text for the course. Readings will be made available either electronically or in the Reserve Reading Room of the library.

Assignments and Evaluation

Final grade in the course will be based on the completion of the four following assignments:

September 30. Intellectual Introduction 20%

This assignment can be thought of as an intellectual biography or introduction. What are the ideas and who are the writers and researchers that brought you to this point in your intellectual development? What is it about the kind of work they do or the topics they work on that appealed to you? How have they shaped your own intellectual engagement? How do you see their work influencing your work in the near future?

Your paper should be approximately 5 typed, double spaced pages with appropriate footnotes, citations and references.

October 28. Thesis Critique 25%

This assignment is designed to give you a sense of graduate research conducted in communication and culture at the University of Calgary and elsewhere. Select one or two MA theses or PhD dissertations in an area of your own interest. In 5-7 pages, provide a summary and assessment of the project completed by the research. Your discussion should include a clear statement of their research question and objectives, an overview of the theoretical context in which they framed their question, the choice of methods and style of data analysis. You should conclude with evaluating the merits and accomplishments of the project (prefaced with an account of how you chose to evaluate the work).

Seminar Presentation 25% Dates coordinated with weekly topics, to be assigned in class

The due date of this assignment will be based on selecting a reading or author from those assigned in the weekly readings in the course outline. You will provide a sense of historical and intellectual context to the work by the particular author you choose. You should be able to summarize and critically evaluate the work of the chosen author and present this material in class on the relevant week.

A formal, 6-8 page paper should be submitted one week after the presentation. The paper will form the major basis for your grade.

December 2. Research Proposal 30%

The final assignment builds on skills acquired throughout the course. It asks you to develop a feasible research question. Drawing on relevant research traditions in communication and cultural analysis, students should suggest the relevance of their research question to the field, and should show how these traditions provide for an approach to answering the question. If relevant, try to relate your question to the evolution of the field. If appropriate, try to include work of relevant MA/MCS and PhD projects from the program. The final paper should be approximately 10-12 pages and include an annotated bibliography. The bibliography should indicate your familiarity with current journals, databases, dissertation abstracts, citation indices, government documents, and monographs that might be relevant to your topic.

Assignments should be submitted via Blackboard using the view/complete assignment link provided, not the digital Dropbox. In particular, please don't e-mail assignments. My inbox isn't any tidier than yours probably is, and this is a sure way for assignments to get lost.

Registrar's- scheduled exam: No

Policy for Late Assignments

Assignments submitted after the deadline may be penalized with the loss of a grade (e.g.: A- to B+) for each day late. All assignments must be completed in order to pass the course.

If a major assignment coincides with the date of your seminar presentation or the paper resulting from it, please see me to discuss an extension.

Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act

This course is conducted in accordance with the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act (FOIP). As one consequence, students should identify themselves on all written work by placing their name on the front page and their ID number. You will be required to provide a piece of picture identification in order to pick up any assignments or look at a final exam from SS320 after classes have ended. For more information see also <http://www.ucalgary.ca/secretariat/privacy>.

Writing Skills Statement

Department policy directs that all written assignments will be assessed at least partly on writing skills. For details see <http://www.comcul.ucalgary.ca/needtoknow>. Writing skills include not only surface correctness (grammar, punctuation, sentence structure, etc.), but also general clarity and organization. Research papers must be properly documented.

If you need help with your writing, you may use the Writing Centre. Visit the website for more details: <http://www.ucalgary.ca/ssc/writing-support>.

Grading System - The following grading system is used in the Department of Communication and Culture for all Graduate courses:

C	60-64.99	2
C-	55-59.99	1.7
D+	53-54.99	1.3
D	50-52.99	1
F	0-49	0

Plagiarism

Using any source whatsoever without clearly documenting it is a serious academic offense. Consequences include failure on the assignment, failure in the course and possibly suspension or expulsion from the university.

You must document not only direct quotations but also paraphrases and ideas where they appear in your text. A reference list at the end is insufficient by itself. Readers must be able to tell exactly where your words and ideas end and other people's words and ideas begin. This includes assignments submitted in non-traditional formats such as Web pages or visual media, and material taken from such sources.

Please consult your instructor or Writing Support Services (3rd Floor Taylor Family Digital Library, <http://www.ucalgary.ca/ssc/writing-support>) if you have any questions regarding how to document sources.

Academic Misconduct

For information on academic misconduct and the consequences thereof please see the current University of Calgary Graduate Calendar at the following link:
